Motion for a resolution

C. whereas most European citizens, especially young people aged from 10 to 20, use a mobile phone, an object serving a practical purpose and a fashion accessory, but there are continuing uncertainties about the possible health risks,

Amendment

C. whereas most European citizens, starting from a young age, use a mobile phone, important questions remain as to their possible effects on health, such as leukemia and brain tumours, in particular in the long-term, as the widespread duration of exposure of humans to radiofrequency fields is shorter than the induction time of some cancers,

Motion for a resolution

Recital I

Motion for a resolution

I. whereas it is paradoxical to say the least that the EU's powers to legislate and lay down exposure limits to protect against the effects of electromagnetic fields should apply only as far as workers are concerned and not to the population as a whole,

Amendment

I. whereas the EU's legislative powers have laid down exposure limits to protect workers against the effects of electromagnetic fields; whereas on the basis of the precautionary principle such measures should also be taken for the concerned population, such as residents and consumers,

Amendment 8
Inés Ayala Sender

Motion for a resolution
Recital I a (new)

Motion for a resolution

Amendment

Ia. whereas the Special Eurobarometer report on Electromagnetic Fields (No 272a of June 2007) indicates that the majority of citizens do not feel that the public authorities inform them adequately on measures to protect them from electromagnetic fields,

Amendment 13
Urszula Krupa

Motion for a resolution
Paragraph 1

Motion for a resolution

1. Renews its call to the Council in its above-mentioned resolution of 4 September 2008 to update its Recommendation 1999/519/EC by laying down stricter exposure limits for all devices emitting electromagnetic waves in the frequency range between 0.1 MHz and 300 GHz, taking into account the best available techniques on the market (BAT);

Amendment

1. Renews its call to the Council in its above-mentioned resolution of 4 September 2008 to update its Recommendation 1999/519/EC by laying down stricter exposure limits for all devices emitting electromagnetic waves in the frequency range between 50 Hz and 300 GHz, taking into account the best available techniques on the market (BAT);

Amendment

1. As a precautionary measure, urges the Commission to review annually the scientific basis and adequacy of the EMF limits as in Recommendation 1999/519/EC in the frequency range between 0.1 MHz and 300 GHz and report to the Parliament. The review should be undertaken by its independent scientific committee, the Scientific Committee for Emerging and Newly Identified Health Risks (SCENIHR). The most recent SCENIHR study, based on broad research and adopted on 19 January 2009, should be taken into account.

Motion for a resolution

Paragraph 1 a (new)

Motion for a resolution

Amendment

1a. Calls for particular consideration of biological effects when assessing the potential health impact of electromagnetic radiation, all the more that some studies have found the most harmful effects at lowest levels; calls for active research to address potential health problems by developing solutions that negate or reduce the pulsating and amplitude modulation of the frequencies used for transmission;

Kathy Sinnott

Motion for a resolution
Paragraph 2

Motion for a resolution

2. Maintains that as well as, or as an alternative to, amending European standards along the above lines, the Commission, working in coordination with experts from Member States and the industries concerned (electricity companies, telephone operators), should draw up a guide to available technology options serving to reduce exposure to electromagnetic waves;

Amendment

2. Maintains that as well as, or as an alternative to, amending European standards along the above lines, the Commission, working in coordination with experts from Member States and the industries concerned (electricity companies, telephone operators and manufacturers of electrical appliances including mobile phones), should draw up a guide to available technology options serving to reduce exposure to electromagnetic waves;

Amendment 20
Kathy Sinnott

Motion for a resolution
Paragraph 3

Motion for a resolution

3. Notes that industry stakeholders can already influence certain factors, for example the distance between a given site and the transmitters, the height of the site in relation to the height of the base station, or the direction of a transmitting antenna in relation to living environments, and, indeed, should obviously do so in order to reassure, and afford better protection to, the people living close to such facilities;
